

Coleridge D. Alleman

(- 5 Feb 1894)

Alleman. At 6:40 o'clock a.m., February 5, 1894, at the residence of his grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. S. Domer, No. 738 11th street northwest of diphtheria, Coleridge Domer Alleman, elder son of John S. and Delia I. Alleman of Harrisburg, Pa. Funeral, which was private, took place this afternoon. (Harrisburg, Pa., daily papers please copy.)

The Evening Star, February 5, 1894

A Sad Death

The death of Coleridge Domer Alleman, eldest son of John S. and Delia Domer Alleman of Harrisburg, which occurred here this morning between 6 and 7 o'clock, at the residence of his grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. Domer, was a peculiarly sad occurrence. Mrs. Alleman, who is well known here in the home of her childhood, has been visiting Washington since December 26, and had intended to leave for home last Wednesday, when her boy was taken ill with diphtheria. By reason of the malignant nature of the disease Mr. Alleman, who had come to the city to accompany his family home, was forced to leave the house and take with him the younger boy, thus cutting him off from all intercourse with his wife and child. The deceased was a bright boy, ten years of age, who was as well known in this city among a wide circle of friends as he was in Harrisburg. The sympathies of hosts of friends go out to his parents and grandparents in their sorrowful bereavement.