In Memoriam

Chapman. At this late date I am frequently asked about the "health of my invalid friend," Mrs. Alice Chapman, widow of Hon. John Lee Chapman, "war mayor" of Baltimore, Md., and daughter of Wm. Thompson of this city. On the 7th of February 1899, she quietly closed her eyes, and with a hand clasped on either side by those she loved best, gently drew a breath. Waiting expectantly for another, I looked questioning at her son. Gradually a glad, restful expression molded her features into what they had been in early years. The earthly tabernacle seemed radiated by the ecstasy of spirit union. Ours had been a companionship of more than forty years. During all the civil war, together we ministered to the comfort of the many wounded soldiers in and around this city. Marriage, widowhood and disappointments followed each other in my friend's life.

Mrs. Chapman had been a sufferer for many years, and longed for the change that came so gently we who lovingly watched knew not when the messenger called her hence.
