The Evening Star, February 14, 1874

DeWitzleben. At Detroit, Michigan, on the 10th instant, Isabella, wife of Arthur DeWitzleben, and eldest daughter of Frederick and Eliza Cudlip.

Of her it may indeed be said:

None knew her but to love her;

None named her but to praise."

Her life, marked by so much evenness of disposition, such unvarying kindness of heart, and a sympathetic tenderness always expressing itself in charity towards others, was closed by a death so calm and peaceful as to be in perfect keeping therewith; and she who had so often and so lovingly ministered to the wants and sufferings of others found at last, though far away from what had until so recently been her home, many loving ones to minister unto her in their turn, and to shed the tear of sorrow over her loved form when all that earthly aid could accomplish had been done. Her funeral will take place from the residence of her parents, 338 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, on Sunday, the 15th instant, at 2 o'clock p.m. The relatives and friends are respectfully invited to attend.
