Druggist Is Found Dead By Father

Body Lies All Night In Narrow Space Between Two Porches

William Edward Dement, 33 years old, pharmacist, employed by the Earle Drug Co., Thirteenth and E streets, was found dead about 6 o'clock this morning after his body had lain all night in a narrow space between the front porch of his home, 1407 Shepherd street, and the porch of the house next door. Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, deputy coroner, pronounced death due to natural causes.

His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Dement, heard a noise on the porch about 11:30 o'clock last night. The father went downstairs, opened the screen door and looked out. Seeing no one, he closed the door and went to bed. This morning he and his wife were worried when they found their son had not returned during the night.

The father went out on the front porch a few minutes before 6 o'clock and happened to look over the railing. He saw the body of his son crumpled up on the round in a space about 3 feet wide between the two porches.

Summoning assistance, he carried the body into the house and Dr. Robert McNitt was sent for. He pronounced the young man dead. Deputy Coroner Rogers made an examination of the body about 11 o'clock and came to the conclusion that Dement died from heart failure, from which he had been suffering for a number of years.

Mr. Dement was well known among the druggists of Washington. He was a native of Washington and a graduate of the Eastern High School and the School of Pharmacy of George Washington University.
