Library Employee Dies At Residence

Miss Georgiana C. Fenton Never Fully Recovered From Influenza

Miss Georgiana Chalfonte Fenton, 60, who for many years had charge of cataloguing public documents at the Library of Congress, died Friday at her home, 2800 Ontario road.

She was stricken with influenza last February, and, although she returned to work the middle of last month, she never fully recovered from her illness. She returned to her office for only a brief time.

Miss Fenton, who had been employed in the Library more than 35 years, is survived by a sister, Miss Sallie B. Fenton, an employe in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Agriculture Department.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Hines' funeral parlors. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.
