Mrs. Nellie Gilmore Dies Taught Sunday School

Mrs. Nellie Prout Gilmore, 75, who lived in Washington most of her life, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after an illness of two months.

Born in Baltimore, she was the daughter of John Bennett, prominent merchant and one of Mosby's Rangers during the Civil War. She was the widow of Frank Buchanan Gilmore, who was with the Central National Bank and the Bank of Washington.

Mrs. Gilmore was an active member of Dumbarton Avenue Methodist Church and taught Sunday school classes there for many years. She was one of the organizers of the Sibley Hospital Linen Guild and remained an active member.

She is survived by a son, Maj. John Prout Gilmore, 3939 Livingston street N.>W.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street N.W. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.
