

John T. Green

(- 1 Mar 1897)

The Evening Star, February 26, 1897

Sudden Stroke

John T. Green, a laborer, sixty years old, whose home is 302 13th street southwest, was taken to the Emergency Hospital today in a probably dying condition. Green was visiting his daughter at 1315 E street northwest, when he complained of an acute pain in his head. In a few minutes he fell out of his chair, and when he was taken to the hospital was in an unconscious condition. His arm was bled, but this afternoon he was thought to be sinking. His condition is due to a stroke of apoplexy.