Edgar Hinkle Dies At His Home Here

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Senior Interviewer of Labor Department

Edgar Holten Hinkle, 32, senior interviewer of the Building Trades and Industrial Division, Labor Department, died Sunday after a heart attack at his home, 908 C street northeast. Funeral services will be held at the residence at 10 a.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Hinkle had lived here for about four and a half years, and had been connected with the Labor Department since 1933.

Born in Clarksburg, W. Va., Mr. Hinkle was graduated from the University of West Virginia in 1922. He came here from Richmond after engaging in civil engineering work for that city. Previously he had worked at Charleston, W. Va. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Surviving him are his widow, who was Mattie Cynthia Whitman of Richmond; two children, Edgar Holten Hinkle, jr., and Cynthia Fay Hinkle; his mother, Mrs. Rose Elmore Hinkle; his mother, Mrs. Rose Elmore Hinkle of Frankford, W. Va.; three brothers, S.P. and W.W. Hinkle of Parsons, W.Va. And four sisters Mrs. K.H. Phillips and Mrs. Peggy Johnson, both of this city; Mrs. M.G. Pugh of Covington, Va., and Miss June M. Hinkle of Frankford. Mr. Hinkle's father was the late Edgar A. Hinkle.
