The Evening Star, October 7, 1854

W.J. Langfit. Most of the readers of the Star will remember the report of the arrest of this person for an assault and battery some weeks since. The officers making the arrest had to struggle hard in arresting him, and hard blows were struck on both sides. Mr. Langfit was released on bail a few days since; but we are informed that for some time prior to his release he had been complaining. This morning we learned that Langfit departed this life yesterday afternoon, and that an examination into the cause of his death would be made by the proper officers.
