

Maria C. Lanzilli (1851 – 26 Dec 1925)

The Evening Star, December 29, 1925, p. 7

Mrs. Maria C. Lanzilli Expires In Hospital Principal of School of Latin Languages Had Been Ill for Several Months

Mrs. Maria C. Lanzilli, principal of the School of Latin Languages, 1521 K street, died at Emergency Hospital Saturday after an illness of several months. Death was due to pernicious anemia. She had been a resident of this city since 1901.

Mrs. Lanzilli was a native of Milan, Italy, and was the daughter of Count Giulio Cernuscoli. After being graduated from several educational institutions in Italy, she was an instructor of Italian literature in Genoa. She leaves her husband, Prof. Pietro Lanzilli, a well-known fencing master.

Funeral services were conducted at Hysong's undertaking establishment yesterday afternoon. Interment was in Congressional Cemetery.

The Washington Post, December 28, 1925, p. 2

Mrs. M.C. Lanzilli Dies

Principal of Latin Languages School to Be Buried Today

Mrs. Maria C. Lanzilli, 1521 K street northwest, principal of the School of Latin Languages, died Saturday morning at Emergency hospital, following several months' illness of pernicious anemia.

Mrs. Lanzilli was a native of Milan, Italy, and the daughter of Count Giulio Cernuscoli. After graduating from educational institutions of Milan, she was an instructor of Italian literature at Genoa. She came to Washington in 1901. A husband, Prof. Pietro Lanzilli, well known fencing master, survives her. Her interment will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at Congressional cemetery.