

James Mardis ( - 6 Sep 1860)

---

The Evening Star, September 6, 1860

Accidental Death of a Washingtonian

We regret to learn that Mr. J. Mardis, a respectable mechanic, while employed upon one of the Virginia railroads, was recently killed by falling from the work upon which he was engaged. By this melancholy accident an interesting family has been deprived of their strongest earthly support, and become subjects for the earnest sympathies of their neighbors and friends. The corpse arrived yesterday and will be interred in this city.