

Ann V. Perkins

(11 Jul 1842 - 16 Dec 1912)

The Evening Star, December 16, 1912, p. 10

Taken Ill On Street Dies

Mrs. Ann V. Perkins Succumbs While on Way to Hospital

Mrs. Ann V. Perkins, seventy years old, of 477 Maryland avenue southwest, was taken ill on the street this morning and died while being removed to Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Perkins, who was in charge of the charwomen at the Department of Agriculture, was going to her place of employment about 6 o'clock this morning when she was taken ill at 7th street and Maryland avenue southwest.

Her death is said to have resulted from heart disease, from which she had suffered for a number of years. A son, D.W. Perkins of this city survives her.