Death of a Washington Business Man

Mr. Terrence Riley, a native of South Washington, died yesterday at his residence on 4 1/2 street, between H and I southwest, leaving a wife and three children. Mr. Riley was in business with his father for many years in the conduct of the Greenleaf Coffee and Spice Mills, corner of 4 1/2 and N streets, and this was the pioneer firm in that business in the District. Mr. R. was a quiet, unostentatious young man, and made many friends among the business men of the District and surrounding country.
