Pension Examiner Dies After Brief Illness

Lewis E. Rogers, well known as an examiner in the pension bureau, seventy-three years old, died Monday morning at Providence Hospital, after a short illness. The family home is at 128 C street northeast. Funeral services will be held at the chapel of the W.R. Speare Company, 1208 H street northwest, at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The interment will be in Congressional cemetery, and private. The active pallbearers will be A.B. Frant, George L. Dietz, E.J. Skidmore, Royal G. Best, W.L. Berry and Henry Marshall; honorary pallbearers, John H. Wood, Silas Kingsley, Edwin Eans, Capt. E.P. Hall, Norman E. Ives and Caius E. Triplett.

Mr. Rogers was a native of Cass county, Indiana. His people were among the early pioneers of Indiana, coming from New Jersey. He was educated in Wabash College, and later read law under the late Judge Maurice M. Winfield and D.D. Dykeman of Loganport, Ind. In 1876 he retired from the active practice of law and took up farming, which he followed for a time, then coming to this city as a special expert in the bureau of labor and as an examiner of pensions. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jennie Berryman Rogers, and three children, Elmer E. and William T. Rogers of this city and Mrs. Leon M. McAllister of Great Falls, Mont.
