A Boy Drowned While Bathing

Yesterday afternoon, Geo. W. Scott, a boy eleven years old, while bathing at the foot of B street southwest (near the monument), was drowned. His body was recovered and taken in the patrol wagon to the residence of his parents, No. 608 C street southwest. The two companions of the boy, who were about the same age, state that he dived beneath the water and struck his head against some stones. He arose to the surface and then disappeared. His body was recovered after being in the water two hours. He was a bright, manly little boy, and aided his parents by selling Star's. The funeral will take place from his parent's residence at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and the interment will be at the Congressional Cemetery.
