Warren Thompson Dies; News Circulation Official

Warren Thompson, 72, a native Washingtonian and at one time circulation manager of the Philadelphia Inquirer, died Sunday after a short illness at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mae McPeek of 5010 Fifty-fourth place, Rogers Heights, Md.

Mr. Thompson spent the major portion of his life in newspaper circulation and promotional positions in Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. For the past eight years, after ill health had caused his retirement, he lived at his sister's home in Rogers Heights.

He is survived by Mrs. McPeek and one other sister, Mrs. Adelaide Gaddis of Washington, and two brothers, Halvor Thompson of New Orleans and Chester O. Thompson of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at W.W. Chambers' Riverdale funeral home. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.
