

Franklin Treadwell

(23 Jan 1852 – 5 Dec 1893)

Treadwell. Passed into spirit life, Franklin, the beloved husband of Helen Treadwell, Tuesday afternoon, December 5, 1893 at 5:30.

There is no death, His spirit birth

A summons from the toil of earth.

'Tis passing to that blissful shore

Where parting moments come no more.

Funeral from his late residence, 926 Seventh street s.w., Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends and acquaintances invited.

The Washington Post, December 6, 1893, p. 1

Death of Officer Treadwell

Last evening at 5:30 o'clock Officer Franklin Treadwell, of the Fourth precinct, died at his residence, 926 Seventh street southwest, after a long and painful illness. The immediate cause of death was Bright's disease. Officer Treadwell was one of the most efficient men on the force. He leaves a wife. He was a member of the Friendship Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the burial will be under the auspices of that lodge.

The Washington Post, December 8, 1893, p. 9

Officer Treadwell's Funeral

The funeral of Franklin Treadwell, late private officer of the Fourth precinct, will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his recent residence, 926 Seventh street southwest. The interment will be at the Congressional Cemetery.

The Washington Post, February 9, 1894, p. 6

For the Widows of Two Officers

Maj. W.G. Moore, superintendent of the Metropolitan police department, has recommended that the sum of $150 be allowed the widows of the late police officers, Franklin Treadwell and J.W. Blaisdell - $75 to each for defraying the funeral expenses of the two officers.