

The Evening Star, August 21, 1873, p. 4
Another Victim Of The Wawaset Disaster

A "Mrs. St. Clair" writes to the New York Sun as follows: "Having read of the Wawaset disaster and the terrible loss of life, I have heard from a private letter of one more victim that was on the boat, whose name was not among the dead. He was a Mr. J.C. Seitz, of Washington, who had resided in Alexandria, Va., and was going into the country. I believe he has friends in New York and Washington and Virginia, and you might relieve their suspense by mentioning his death in your private paper."